Compact Protection for Everyone
A word about pepper spray effectiveness:

As you know, there are many self-defense sprays on the market today. Pick up a few packages, and you will see that their effectiveness is advertised and presented in a few different ways. Of course, common sense tells us that what really matters most is "how hot is the spray that hits the attacker?" In marketing the effectiveness of their pepper spray products, some manufacturers stress the amount of OC (Oleoresin Capsicum—shown as a percentage) in their spray. Others stress the SHU (Scoville Heat Unit) value of the OC contained within the spray, or they use a combination of the two. Security Plus believes that neither method is a true and accurate measurement of effectiveness. This is why:

The OC percentage is, simply put, the percentage of OC contained within the defense sprays formulation. A spray that advertises a “10% OC” content simply contains 10% OC (active ingredient), and 90% inactive ingredients. What this percentage does not tell you, however, is the potency, or “hotness,” of the OC AFTER it is blended with its inactive ingredients.

Stressing the SHU value, or “potency,” of the OC is another measure used by manufacturers. This value is simply the strength of the OC before it is diluted in the remainder of the solution. Sure, the OC in a spray may come from peppers with a 2,000,000 SHU value, but what percentage of the final formula actually contains OC?

Bottom Line? Neither the OC percentage nor the SHU rating are accurate measurements of the strength of the formula inside a can of pepper spray! Simple math would tell you that a 10% OC formula manufactured from a 2,000,000 SHU strength OC should yield a spray with a 200,000, SHU, right? Unfortunately, chemistry is not that simple of a science! While advertising the simple math is not necessarily an outright lie, it is very misleading.

The only true and accurate way to measure a spray’s potency is to measure it after it leaves the nozzle.

This is why Security Plus® had other sprays independently tested and rated on how they perform when they leave the can, not on what the base formulation is before it is blended with other ingredients. That is why Security Plus® advertises the actual “Nozzle SHU” of their defense spray: the strength of the spray after it leaves the nozzle. They also had an independent lab test the formulas of the competing sprays. Compared with what these other brands advertise, the results are surprising! Only Security Plus guarantees the strength of the spray when it leaves the can!

Security Plus® is the ONLY company that fully guarantees its OC spray heat rating. Security Plus® realized that the safety of their friends and family were at stake with their products. That is why they developed a line of new defense spray formulations that you, your friends and your family could depend on at any time. Security Plus® is so confident of the effectiveness of their spray formulas, that they actually guarantee it, 100%.

Here are a couple of examples:

The Security Plus® 15% formulation, is now called Model 18: Guaranteed at least 180k nozzle SHU’s.
The Security Plus® 10% formulation, is now called Model 12: Guaranteed at least 140k nozzle SHU’s.

Compare Security Plus® Brand Nozzle SHU’s with the competition!

We believe that an educated consumer is a wise consumer. What to buy for your personal self-defense, and that of your loved ones, is an important decision. We want to help you make it a wise one.

A stun device is a legal (check your states regulations) electrical device that puts out a high voltage shock! By merely touching a person with the device, the attacker is potentially immobilized for up to several minutes with no permanent damage. The energy stored in this electronically controlled stun device is dumped into the attacker’s muscles at a pulse frequency rate that tells the muscles to do a great deal of work rapidly. This rapid work cycle instantly depletes the attacker’s blood sugar by converting it to lactic acid, similar to the feeling one gets after a hard workout at the gym. In short, the attacker is unable to produce energy for his muscles, and his body becomes unable to function properly. The stun device does not rely on high amperage or pain for results. It is designed to key into the nervous system. It interrupts the tiny neurological impulses that travel through the whole body to control and direct voluntary muscle movement. When an attacker’s neuromuscular system is overwhelmed and controlled by the stun device, instant disorientation and loss of balance occur. Should the assailant be touching you, the current will NOT pass to your body!

Great new colors make your bags easy to identify.

SearchAlert™ Classic luggage locks are airport security compliant, tamper-proof, inexpensive, and prevent baggage theft and the introduction of contraband. The SearchAlert™ luggage lock can only be opened using your own combination or the master keys that the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) has. Therefore the TSA would not need to cut your lock, should they pick your luggage for a “random search.” The SearchAlert™ lock has a unique window that changes color from green to red when the TSA override device is used to open the lock, or when an unauthorized person has opened the lock using a counterfeit opening device. Usually the SearchAlert™ TSA locks are not opened, so if the window on your lock is still green at the baggage claim, you leave the airport with peace of mind! If your SearchAlert™ TSA lock is opened, the window will be red, you can immediately take inventory of the contents and file a claim with the TSA. The lock then may be reset for future use.

Counterfeit Detector Pen

Counterfeiters produce millions of dollars worth of fake currency every year, subsequently costing businesses millions when they try to deposit them in their bank accounts. The paper (actually a fabric) used in most currency cannot be replicated or reproduced, even by the best counterfeiters. Our counterfeit detection pen contains a specially formulated chemical that tests the material used to make the currency in question. Simply mark the bill anywhere, and the mark will instantly change color. If the mark stays clear or a slight yellow discoloration, the bill is genuine. If the mark turns black or brown, the bill is a counterfeit! The mark on genuine currency will disappear within 24-48 hours; therefore you are not illegally defacing the bill. The pen works on most major currencies in circulation, with the exception of Canadian currency.
